

Jen Dionne and “D-Lab”: New materials & methods to control light

We imagine a future where diseases like Alzheimer’s are cured with light, solar cells provide abundant and inexpensive clean energy, and cell phones compute at the speed of light. We then strive to make that vision a reality through synthesis and characterization of new optical nanomaterials, metamaterials and devices.

